SUBJECT: Enclosure 8 (Reserve Force Integration) to V Corps Command Training Guidance for FY03-04, Change 1

1. Purpose. To provide guidance to Commanders of Reserve Component (RC) units affiliated with V Corps.

2. References.

- a. AR 11-30, The Army WARTRACE Program.
- b. AR 350-9, Overseas Deployment Training.
- c. FORSCOM Reg 11-30, The Army WARTRACE Program.
- d. FORSCOM Reg 220-3, Reserve Component Training Assessment.
- e. FORSCOM Reg 350-2, Reserve Component Training in America's Army.
- f. FORSCOM Reg 350-4, Active Component (AC)/Reserve Component (RC) Training Association Program.

3. Background: RC units are affiliated with V Corps under the following programs that create training and wartime relationships. These affiliations are used to build the appropriate troop lists for Corps and Division level exercises.

a. Corps Packaging. The 35th Infantry Division, 256th Separate Infantry Brigade and the 278th Armored Cavalry Regiment are Corps Packaged with V Corps. Corps Packaging aligns ARNG divisions and enhanced Separate Brigades (eSBs) with active-duty Army corps, facilitating AC/RC integration, exercises, training associations, and sourcing of contingency operations. Corps Packaging does not provide any additional resources for the participants. Corps packaging does not connote OPLAN alignment or WARTRACE. (Joint Strategic Capabilities Plan apportionment is being worked as a separate action.) Units Corps Packaged with V Corps continue to have peer and senior mentor relationship with III Corps units as part of FORSCOM's role in providing guidance and oversight of RC units inside CONUS.

b. Wartrace. The WARTRACE program was initiated in 1994 as a replacement for the CAPSTONE Program. WARTRACE is a planning tool for wartime contingencies and creates a defined training association and focus between specific RC units and V Corps. WARTRACE affiliations are associated with OPLANs for various contingencies. Units which are traced to V Corps on multiple OPLANs or who's primary WARTRACE is to V Corps are prime candidates for inclusion in Corps and Division Exercises. WARTRACE alignments are classified and can be accessed utilizing JOPEs.

c. 7th ARCOM Alignment. The 280th Rear Operations Center (ROC), 301st ROC (1 ID), 1AD ROC, 309th, 317th, and 345 Rear Area Operations Centers (RAOCs), 1172nd Movement Control Team, 454th Replacement Detachment, 7th JTF Augmentation Team, 10 Logistics Augmentation Team and the IInd (GE) Korps LNO Reserve Support Augmentation Element (RSAE) are Germany-based USAR units with missions to support V Corps. These units are the sole providers of specific command and control support to Corps and Division Rear Areas.

(1) Reserve Component units support the Corps in various ways. In one example, reserve component soldiers are 65% of the Corps Rear Command Post. The 280th ROC Mission Statement is provided:

Mission Statement: Upon mobilization, 280th ROC forms the nucleus of the Operations Cell, V Corps Rear Command Post, providing command and control of rear operations in the Corps Area of Responsibility.

(2) Reserve Component affiliation. The Corps maintains situational awareness of all RAOC/ROC unit stationing concerns and desires. Additionally, the Corps lays out the affiliations of all RAOCs and ROCs with active components units.

(a) 280th ROC.....affiliation.....V Corps

(1) 317th RAOC

(2) 309th RAOC

(3) 345th RAOC

(b) 1AD ROC.....affiliation.....1st Armored Division

(c) 301st ROC.....affiliation.....1st Infantry Division

(3) Habitual Training Relationships. There are units who are not currently on a WARTRACE or other type alignment to V Corps but who satisfy their unit METL by training with V Corps. There is room for these units in the V Corps Exercise program and in other cases the Corps gains significant operational support from these units. The annual participation of the 109th EN Group in WFX's and the Corps EN BDE BRIDGEX is one such example. Operational rotations of National Guard maneuver units to support CMTC OPFOR requirements and Aviation Maintenance units to support the COSCOMS 7-159 AVN are examples of RC units accomplishing both training and mission support during one deployment. The following training relationships have been established.
